What our clients' think...

Network Rail's System Operator function turned to AARCPS when it needed support with the production of a new Health and Safety Guide to communicate health and safety processes, standards and interfaces.

Production of the guide involved liaison with over 25 members of the System Operator team, including individual interviews, working groups and consultations, with the resulting document including:

- 'One-stop-shop' for readily accessible information
- Practical tips and resources
- Use of real-life scenarios, challenging people's knowledge and behaviours

From the outset, AARCPS was extremely professional, giving advice throughout, whilst playing an integral part in managing and developing what was a challenging project through to its conclusion
